

NPR : National Public Radio

Thursday, April 7, 2022

The Senate is expected to confirm Ketanji Brown Jackson to the Supreme Court today

Ukraine appeals for arms from NATO as U.S. and allies seek new penalties for Russia

Putin's daughters were just sanctioned. Here's what we know about them

Turkish court rules that Khashoggi trial should be transferred to Saudi Arabia

Many harried election officials are eyeing the exit. But new workers are stepping up

Scans reveal the brain's early growth, late decline and surprising variability

'The Dropout' nails the ending – even though Elizabeth Holmes' story isn't over

Lawmakers in Germany are weighing compulsory COVID shots for people over 60

Hong Kong's No. 2 official, a staunch crackdown supporter, will run for top job

The Russia-Ukraine war: Russia leaves the north and hundreds evacuate from Mariupol

The fox responsible for biting people at the U.S. Capitol tests positive for rabies

A dad who moved into his daughter's dorm room is convicted of abusing her friends

As Kansas celebrates victory, a years-long NCAA investigation hangs over the school

A norovirus outbreak is linked to raw oysters distributed in 13 states, the FDA says

The House approves criminal contempt referrals for 2 Trump aides over the Jan. 6 attack

2022 Whiting Awards celebrate 10 emerging writers

Oklahoma's vote to ban most abortions comes at a key moment for reproductive rights

Advisers to FDA weigh in on updated COVID boosters for the fall

The Sacramento mass killing involved at least 5 shooters, police say

A clash over immigration policy derails a Senate COVID aid bill

Topics

- News
- Arts & Life
- Music

Contact Us

Terms of Use

Permissions

Privacy Policy

© NPR